Curvature of the Spine.

DR. HAMILTON,
No. 47, North Gay street, Baltimore,
HAVING turned much of his attention during a long practice to the diseases of the Spine, begs leave to tender his services for the cure or relief of that afflicting malady. The approach of this disease is easily detected by an attentive observer. It makes its appearance generally in children between the second and sixth year; a protuberance of one or more of the small bones composing the spine becomes evident, loss of appetite, irregularity of the bowels, and emaciation soon follow, together with much disinclination to walk—and unless immediate aid is obtained, death or incurable decripitude through life are the certain consequences.

Doctor Hamilton has the satisfaction of knowing that his treatment of this disease, and application of the necessary apparatus, which is simplified at the same time, that it is materially improved, have received the unqualified approbation of many of the most eminent of his medical brethren in Baltimore. Spring corsets, upon a new principle, can be applied for the use of young ladies evincing a tendency to this disease, which, while they afford the most effectual support for either side, may be worn without observation. Satisfactory references might be given to parents whose children have profited by this improved mode of treatment, did not delicacy forbid the publication: they may be easily obtained if desired, by a private interview.

March 15 A. P. GOVER.

Notice,

To Wheelwrights, Blacksmiths, Tanners, Harness-Makers, Saddlers, Hatters, &c.
BELIEVING as I do, that PROVIDENCE, at Fairfax Court-House, would be a suitable situation for mechanics of the above description, I offer to such, lots in that village for sale, on ground rent for ever—will build and furnish suitable houses and rent to them, or furnish brick to them to build with; and invite any who feel disposed to settle there, for the purpose of carrying on their respective trades to advantage, to come and view the situation. It is a very public place, the centre of the county, where the superior and county courts are held. The Little River Turnpike Road passes through this little town from Alexandria westward, and where all the public meetings for the county, &c. are held; and where trades of the aforesaid description being carried on, would meet with great encouragement, and be a public convenience to the country around. No situation can be more healthy—good water, and fire wood cheap. Mechanics of the above description must generally depend on the country people, farmers, &c. to be their customers. Here they would be in a convenient situation for all the purposes. I invite a call, and view for themselves. I would also furnish lots adjacent, from one to five acres each, for cultivation, pasture, &c. on moderate terms; all of which can be shown, and terms made known, on application to RICH'D. RATCLIFFE,
Fairfax Court-House. Va

Daily Gazette, 7 dolls...Country, 5 dolls.

THURSDAY, MAY 13, 1819.

New-York, May 8.

BY THE SHIP THAMES.

On a re-perusal of the London papers by this vessel, we are enabled to give some interesting remarks. Gaz.

The London Courier of the first ult. acknowledges the receipt of New-York papers to the 10th March, containing the report of our senate on the conduct of general Jackson. On this document the Courier observes.

"These papers contain the report of the Senate upon the conduct of general Jackson, and the Seminole war. We will do it the justice to say, that it is drawn up with great perspicuity, and, which cannot often be said of American writing, with considerable elegance of style. It condemns, as our readers already know, the conduct of gen. Jackson, with respect both to engaging in the war at all, and savage condemnation of Arbuthnot and Ambrister. So did the Committee of the House of representatives, though the house afterwards decided, by a majority, not to confirm the opinion of that committee. At least, therefore, these recorded sentiments of his countymen will remain, while in Europe, only one feeling, a feeling of execration, exists upon the subject."

The editor, after a hasty view of the report concludes,

"We can do no more to day, than submit the preceeding passages from it to our readers. We shall endeavour, however, on a future occasion, to give it entire, as it is a document interesting to England, and credible to the body from which it has emanated."

The Courier of the same date, remarks, that

"A question of considerable importance occupied the attention of the house of Commons yesterday. It was whether the summons of the house to a soldier, supercedes the authority of his officers over him. The declared opinion of the house, was in the affirmative. This involves so delicate a principal of constitutional power, that we will not approach it with any hasty or superficial enquiry. It may perhaps be said, that the authority thus asserted by the House, would, if pushed to its extreme, embrace the command of the army—but on the other hand, it may also be urged, that if an officer had the right to refuse permission to a soldier to attend, then the Legislature would be subservient to the military authority. The attendance of a soldier when summoned might be secured by making his officer responsible, as well as himself. This perhaps would be preferable to releasing the former from the authority of his commander."

GENERAL GOURGAUD.

Mr. Lambton, on the 2d ult. in the British House of Commons, brought forward a petition from gen. Gourgaud, at the request of a distinguished foreigner relating to the execution of the alien act of last year. The petition complains of illegal and unwarrantable oppression on the part of the English government, the seizure of the General's papers, of unjustifiable cruelties and personal barbarities. Mr. L. hoped that these barbarities might be disproved to the honor of the country.

In the course of the debate on this subject, Sir G. Cockburn observed, that from what had been so emphatically urged as to the high character for fidelity to gen. Gourgaud, he thought it right to state something which he happened to know of that officer at St. Helena, where the General stated to him that he had great reason to complain of that scoundrel grand Marshal (Bertrand)—for so these persons were in the habit of speaking of each other.—The General mentioned his ground of complaint. He said that he had served in the army under Bonaparte in Russia, where he had so distinguished himself as to attract the favor of Napoleon; but that when Napoleon abdicated, he felt himself released from his allegiance and joined the army of the king. In that army he was favored with the patronage of the Duke de Berri, through whom he obtained the cross of St. Louis—but yet that when Napoleon returned, from Elba, he immediately offered him his services, in consequence of which Napoleon appointed him to a high command in the ordnance. On which he, (Gourgaud) called upon Bertrand to thank him, conceiving that appointment to be owing to that Marshal's recommendation. The Marshal, however, promptly undeceived him, observing, that he had no notion of recommending the appointment of such Giroutes [a laugh]. Hence Gourgaud complained to Bertrand, and upon his (Sir G. C's) asking Gourgaud wherefore he had come to St. Helena—Gourgaud replied, "from fidelity to his sovereign." He hoped that no one would suppose him (Sir G. C.) likely to condemn an officer for fidelity, but as to what degree of character for fidelity really belonged to Gen. Gourgard, the house could judge from the circumstances which he had stated [hear, and a laugh.] As to the case alluded to on the other side, he did not exactly comprehend the allusion—but he could assure the honorable gentleman from whom it proceeded, that no such a case had happened with regard to any officer in the navy.

Mr. Lambton, in reply, maintained, that however it might have been lawful to arrest General Gourgaud, there was no law whatever to authorise the seizure of his papers. As to the character of the general, it was rather strange that if that character were so exceptionable as some gentlemen would now insinuate, the general should have been admitted to an acquaintance with a minister of the Crown, or how came he to dine with Lord Barthurst? With regard to the terms on which the allegation of Mr. Capper was spoken off, he begged that in order to appreciate the character of that person, gentlemen would take the trouble of reading what referred to him in the report of the police committee of 1816. It would be there seen that this Mr. Benjamin Capper found his way into a gaming house, accompanied by other police officers—that he there appeared in uniform with a drawn sword, and actually took away all the money on the table, for none of which he accounted. This appeared from the evidence of Mr. Nares, the magistrate, and after such evidence, he apprehended that no one would be found to put the credit of Capper in competition with Gen. Gourgaud, or that of any other individual entitled to the least consideration. He therefore called upon the noble Lord Castlereagh, for the honor of his own government, to institute an enquiry into the merits of this petition, and not allow himself to be influenced by any desire to screen such a person as Mr. Capper. It was said on the other side that General Gourgaud was after his arrest, allowed to see his friends, but he could mention an instance in which the application of a gentleman for that purpose was absolutely refused.

The petition was laid on the table, and ordered to be printed.

Agricultural Monthly Report for March.

A more favored Spring, whether with respect to the crops or the operations of husbandry, has never been witnessed. The wheats are in a reasonable state of forwardness; and could their progress be in proportion, harvest might be finished during July, old style.—The quantity of March dust which has flown, has had the full of its proverbial good effect. All the Spring crops which are above ground wear a luxuriant and promising appearance, with those exceptions to be expected; and the latter seed season is likely to be favorable. All parts of the country are unusually early. The lambing has been in general very successful, as might be expected in such a season.

THE TABLES TURNED:

Or a new way of obtaining credit.

The Bank of ——, versus John ——. } Superior Court of Law for the County of ——.

This suit originated in the county court, upon a promissory note, drawn in the usual way, for the sum of 62 dollars. The execution, protest, &c. was proven in due bank form. The defendant failing to establish his pleas, of course, as usual, the bank obtained judgement. The defendant, much to the astonishment of the gentlemen learned in the law, craved an appeal to the Superior Court, for which, the sum being small he easily obtained the necessary security. He was told by the attorney for the bank, that it was ridiculous to appeal; that the action was brought upon a plain note of hand that the bank must recover, and that it would certainly demand the damages that the law gave, as well as the interest. However, the defendant said he was the best judge of his own business, and that, if he must follow the advice of a lawyer, he preferred one that was not employed against him. So that the appeal was regularly brought up; and, as the banks always have their own notary and witnesses, of course the plaintiff was ready; and as the defendant could make no defence to a plain note of hand, payable and negociable at bank, he could have no legal excuse to continue the cause—so both parties were, or compelled to be ready.

The bank's attorney informed the jury that it was an action upon a plain note of hand, brought against the defendant, the maker, and which the bank had discounted for his profit—I mean, gentlemen of the jury, accommodation—and which he had most ungratefully neglected to take up, pay and discharge; and that the bank was compelled to bring three separate suits on this small note, (holding it up to the jury,) one against himself, and one against each of the endorsers—and that these suits were brought in the county court, and judgment obtained; and the defendant was fool enough to appeal to this court, where he must inevitably be cast; and the costs in three suits will amount to more than the debt: but, gentlemen it is not the bank's fault—the defendant has brought it upon himself. The note was proved, in due form, by one of the clerks of the bank, who swore to the defendant's hand writing; and the jury was informed by Mr. Attorney that it was unnecessary to prove the protest and notice to the endorsers, as the action was brought against the maker. The calculation was made, and the jury told that the bank expected their verdict for 62 dols. principal, 2 dols for protest, and 5 dols 89 cts. interest—making the aggregate sum of sixty-nine dollars, and eighty-nine cents.

The defendant stated, with a mournful countenance, that it was true the bank had accommodated him by lending him the money; that the times were hard; that he thanked the bank for their kindness; yet he did not think it a very great accommodation to be subjected to the costs of three suits, when the act of assembly authorises both the drawer and endorsers to be included in one writ; and he hoped to make it appear, that, in this case, the bankers have not even accommodated their ownselves. He admitted that it was a plain note of hand; that he justly owed the bank 69 dollars and 89 cents—but that the bank was indebted to him in a larger sum; and that, as he had entered the plea of set off, he asked the jury to find the issues in his favor. He then took out of his breeches pocket an old leathern bag, and proceeded deliberately to untie the string. The eyes of all the audience were upon him. At length he hauled out two small pieces of paper—first opened one, and then the other. Here gentlemen is the bank's note for fifty dollars; here is another for twenty dollars—fifty dollars and twenty dollars make seventy dollars—and as seventy dollars is more than sixty-nine dollars and eighty-nine cents, it will follow, of course, that the bank owes me eleven cents.

It was objected, on behalf of the bank, that the defendant ought not to be allowed this offset; and not, at any rate, unless he proved that he had the identical notes in his possession at the time of the commencement of the suit. That if defendants could at any time, offsett the notes of banks against suits brought by the banks, that any defendant, after putting off a suit for twelve or eighteen months, might always, by procuring one dollar more than the debt, subject the bank to the costs of two distinct courts.

His honor, after inspecting the notes, observed to the jury, that it appeared from their dates, that the notes had been issued previous to the commencement of the suit; and as they were made payable on demand consequently they must have been due at the time the action was brought; and as the notes of the corporation must be viewed in the same light as the notes of individuals that the defendant upon proving the hand writing of the president and cashier, would be entitled to a set-off—and consequently the bank being indebted eleven cents to the defendant, they must find a verdict for him. The hand-writing was proved; and the jury, without leaving the box, gave a verdict for the defendant, amidst the applause of a crowded court.

N. B. The other two suits were dismissed; and the defendant marched out of court calculating the costs of the three suits in both courts.]

THE PEDESTRIAN'S HOBBY HORSE.

'Baron Von Drais, a gentleman at the court of the grand duke of Baden, is the inventor of this ingenious machine, called DRAIS LAUFMASCHIN by the Germans, and DRAISIENA by the French.

"Under the direction of the same individual, some years since, a carriage was constructed to go without horses—but as it required too servants to work it, and was a very complicated piece of workmanship, besides being heavy and expensive, the baron, after having bro't it to some degree of perfection, relinquished the design altogether in favor of the machine here represented, & now introduced into this country, by Mr. Johnson, of 75, of Longacre; it is a most simple, light machine, and is likely to become useful and generally employed in England, as well as in Germany and France; particularly in the country, in gentlemen's pleasure grounds and parks By medical men on the continent, it is esteemed a discovery of much importance, as it affords the best exercise for the benefit of health. "The swiftness with which a person well practised can travel, is almost beyond belief; eight, nine and even ten miles may be passed over within the hour, on good and level ground. The inventor, Baron Von Drais, travelled last summer, previous to his last improvement, from Manheim to Swiss relay house and back again, a distance of four hours journey, by the post, in one short hour; and he has lately with the approved machine, ascended the steep hill from Gernsbach to Baden which generally requires two hours, in about an hour, and convinced a number of scientific amateurs, assembled on the occasion, of the great swiftness of this very interesting species of carriage. The principle of this invention is taken from the art of skating, and consists in the simple idea of a seat upon two wheels propelled by the feet acting upon the ground. The riding seat, or saddle, is fixed on a perch upon two double shod wheels, running after each other, so that they can go up the foot ways, which in summer are almost always good. To preserve the balance, a small board, covered and stuffed, is placed before on which the arms are laid, and in front of which is the little guiding pole which is held in the hand to direct the route. These machines will answer very well for messengers and other purposes, and even for long journeys: they do not weigh fifty pounds, and may be made with travelling pockets, &c. in a very handsome and durable form. The price as we are informed is from 8 to 10 pounds.

"Pedestrial wagers against time have of late been much the hobby of the English people, and this new invention will give new scope for sport of that sort."

ALEXANDRIA:
THURSDAY, MAY 13, 1819.

CHARACTER OF DOCT. SAM. JOHNSON.

One might have hoped that the character of Doctor Johnson would by this time be as well settled a point as any in the history of literature. His writings are sufficiently various and voluminous, and have for half a century undergone the incessant scrutiny of the world. Some of the ablest men in the world have repeatedly given their judgment upon him; and yet we continually hear and continually read so much for and against it—so many warm panegyrics, and so many fastidious censures upon him and his works, that a stranger who had never heard of him before, would naturally be led to conclude, from the mass of controversy to which they occasionally give rise, that he was a man of but to-day or yesterday, whose fame was yet floating in uncertainty, the privileged sport of caprice and surly hypercriticism. That extraordinary man, whose example, while living, incited his cotemporaries to intellectual exertion, and whom posterity will regard with a mixture of reverence and emulation, now finds in many of his readers either a bigot, so blended with admiration of his superiative powers as to disgrace him by the most clumsy imitation of his imperfections, or a Zoilus, who aims only to call in question his reputation, and to destroy his well earned fame.

Johnson had grown grey in literature.—He lived in the capacity of an author on the town for more than fifty years. By exhausting a long and laborious life in contributing to the improvement and delight of his countrymen, he finally obtained, because he merited the general unfeigned approbation of the far greater part of them, and particularly of the learned, the pious, the virtuous and the wise. His enlightened mind looked only to the happiness and perfection of his species, and was therefore constantly employed in emitting such effusions of virtuous intelligence as tended equally to clear the head and better the heart; and when his death, which had been some time expected, was announced, society in general regarded the melancholy event, not with ordinary regret merely, but with a consternation or poignant sensibility like that of a family who had lost its head, or an army whose general has fallen.

Of Johnson, as of most men who outlive their cotemporaries, it may be said that the anecdotes of his juvenile days have perished with the companions of his youth. A Boswell, a Piozzi and other gleaners of oddity and imbecility, by grouping in one heterogeneous mass, the excentricities of genius loaded with the frailties of age, and tottering under the accumulated decays of nature, exhibit him as a monster. The one has exposed him, like Swift, when he had survived his understanding, as a show to gratify licentious merriment; and in gross violation of gratitude and friendship, bro't derision on talents and qualities which he still seemed to adore. The other, piqued at the disgust which Johnson avowed on her marriage, in this manner takes her revenge on his memory; and after contributing her share to inflate him with vanity, drags him forth in disguise, and invites the public to laugh at the awkward and gigantic caricature of her own imagination.

In fairly estimating the real merit of this elegant and masterly writer, it will be necessary to attend, not so much to what he knew as to what he communicated. His most intimate friends could obtain but a partial acquaintance with the former; the public are in full possession of the latter. It seems of very little consequence how the fountain is supplied, while the stream preserves its fullness. The genius of Johnson, from whatever source he drew his information, whether his acquaintance with philosophy or philology was solid or superficial, or whether he was a man of science or a mere lexicographer, abounded with originality on every subject which occupied his attention. His writings are not theoretical, but he often elucidates general knowledge without obscuring his style by technical phraseology.

How then shall the science of an author who attaches himself to no particular one, be decided? To infer his ignorance of specific qualities, from his acquaintance with that alone which involves them, is like upbraiding the philosopher who studies the principles of mechanics, because he is not a wheelwright or a watch maker. Examine all his allusions in his Ramblers, his Idlers, and his lives, and let his science be appreciated in the same proportion as these are adopted with propriety. What is it that has thus enriched his style, and rendered all his details so much more interesting and original than those of most other authors? Is it not the solid and profound reflections of a sagacious, discriminating and well informed mind? In fact it was in passing through this intelligent medium, that his various and literary communications accumulated all their value and importance; and what he has said of Dryden, applies with peculiar propriety to himself. "His words abound with knowledge and sparkle with illustration. There is scarcely any science or faculty that does not supply him with occasional images and lucky similitudes; every page discovers a mind very widely acquainted both with art and nature, and in possession of great stores of intellectual wealth"

To a mind thus matured in learning, science and knowledge of the world, Johnson added such an amplitude of wit, as answered all the purposes of petulence, spleen and amusement. It is however, not a little singular, that with a bluntness of address, and a coarseness of colloquial expression, peculiarly characteristic, he was equally without humor, and superior to every species of buffoonery. All his ideas, in whatever terms he chose to exhibit them, were brilliant, original and correct. He was a painter who seldom dealt in sketches. His pictures might be sometimes preposterous, fanciful, overcharged, and not unfrequently monstrous for deformity, but were generally finished. He possessed in an eminent degree the talent of elevating the conversation by an exuberance of classical and interesting sentiment; but in the course of a long life, and in the enjoyment of a numerous and polished acquaintance, gave but few specimens of those elegant and social pleasantries which are often to be found in the company of the learned and polite. With a large share of good nature, he could occasionally be unpardonably severe; and he never was more entertaining than when he gave a loose to the sarcastic propensity of his nature, at the expense of some character absent or present.

An attempt is making to produce an impression on the public mind, of an intention to convene Congress at a day earlier than that established by the Constitution. It may prevent misapprehension to state, that from all we can learn, there is no foundation whatever for such a rumor. The common supposition of a deficiency in the revenue is entirely unfounded, the receipts having equalled, if not exceeded, expectation. There is at present not even a plausible ground for anticipating a call of Congress. The propogation of such rumours as have a tendency unnecessarily to agitate the public mind, has an injurious effect at least, if not a mischievous object.

SOMETHING SINGULAR.

On the 1st of this instant, at the farm occupied by James Rogers, in the vicinity of this place, as the young men were throwing the sheaves of wheat from off the stack, for the purpose of threshing, a living hen was uncovered, which had been enclosed within the stack when in was first built (in August last). I happened to be present, and was careful in the examination of all the circumstances attending this phenomenon.

She lay at the top of the outside sheaf, close to the but end of the sheaf which binds the heart of the stack, in a hole like a common nest, and so closely confined, that she could not turn herself—her head towards the centre—her excrements were voided in one spot, about three inches in diameter; the moisture of which had sunk downward and caused the sheaf to rot in that place.—There was no appearance of her having eaten any of the grain. When first uncovered to the fresh air, she appeared in distress, and made a noise as is common when disturbed in the night, only very weak, but soon fell asleep again. She died in about an hour.

Mr. Rogers cut her open; there was very little flesh upon her, and no blood; her gizzard contained nothing but two small pieces of gravel; her craw or ingluvies appeared like a little bag, perfectly empty, as were her intestines. After some time I examined her again, and found her flesh to be somewhat red, and that a little blood had oozed out along the back.

I cannot pretend to account for the manner of her existence in that confined state, where the heat occasioned by the fermentation of the grain, would be great, and the stench arising from the acid and ammonia generated by the dung and other feculent matter, would be intolerable.

Penmanship.

A PRACTICAL, easy running hand warranted, and no compensation received except there is an improvent made to the utmost satisfaction of the young ladies and gentlemen who attend.

Those disposed may try the experiment during 12 hours, at the end of which time, if their improvement does not meet their approbation, they may withdraw and no charge made. And further, if those scholars who continue on through the 16 lessons, do not in their own estimation, or in the estimation of their parents or guardians, make more improvement than is generally made in two years, in the old way of teaching, it is requested that no one pay any thing.

During the 16 lessons are taught the small running hand, secretary and Italian hand, the last of which is particularly fashionable for young ladies.

The teacher having had nearly eight years experience at various seminaries of learning and in the principal cities and towns in the United States, offers the advantage of this long experience to all those who apply, during the present week, after which none can be received.

Those disposed to engage, may apply at the writing room, Washington-street, two doors north of King-street, where may be seen specimens of hand writing, acquired in less than one week. Application must be made during the present week—after which not one scholar will be received.

A class of young ladies may attend at any separate hours, either in the morning or evening; and also young ladies who prefer it may take lessons at home.

As this plan of writing embraces the two essential qualities of a good penman, ease and elegance; and as the time necessary to acquire it is merely nothing, it is believed, if its real utility were fully known, not one person of any age, who has the least wish of improving his hand writing, would hesitate to try the experiment. Perhaps this opportunity may not offer again in Alexandria for many years.

Valuable Land for Sale.

THE subscriber will sell at private sale the tract of land on which he lives, containing about 1500 Acres.

It joins the town of Warrenton, the seat of justice for Fauquier county—It is 42 miles from Alexandria, the city of Washington and Georgetown; 40 from Fredericksburg; and 45 from Winchester. This estate, in a neighborhood celebrated for health and good water, is well adapted to grazing and to the growth of corn and wheat. The turnpike road leading from Alexandria to Warrenton is finished, with the exception of seven miles. The improvements are a two story HOUSE, about fifty feet long, in the suburbs of Warrenton; two houses for overseers; a large barn, stables, and every necessary house for a farm. On the property are three good apple orchards, and a variety of other fruit trees. This tract is now divided into two farms—each of which has a superabundance of wood, and is laid off into six fields under good fences, with running water in every field. I believe there is a sufficiency of stone on the land to enclose the whole tract. Both farms have been under a course of clover and plaster for several years, by which they have been much improved, as the plaster acts with very great effect. The subscriber will divide the tract to suit purchasers. The terms are one third down, with an accommodating credit on the balance, if he sells a part; but only one fourth if the purchaser buys the whole tract, together with the stock of horses, cattle, sheep, hogs, the farming utensils of every description, and all the provision that may be on hand for the support of the farm.

Round Hill for Sale.

BY virtue of a deed of trust from Daniel McPherson and wife to me, under date of the 30th of May, 1816, and for the purposes therein prescribed, I shall sell at public auction, on the premises on FRIDAY, the 4th of JUNE next, a tract of land in the county of Fairfax, known by the name of lying on the stage or Colchester road, distant about 6 miles from Alexandria, and containing 148¼ acres, more or less;—reserving, however, to George Triplett his right to one moiety of the dwelling house and yard. This land has been very considerably improved by judicious cultivation, and there are now growing crops of small grain upon it.

Also, one other tract, being an equal undivided moiety of a tract of land in the said county, contiguous to the foregoing, and supposed to contain 25 acres 2 poles.

The terms of sale will be made known at the time and place of sale.

Gunston for Sale.

THIS elegant estate is situated on the Potomac, 16 miles below Alexandria—it is bounded on three sides by the Potomac and Pohick creek, and contains nearly 3,000 acres of land, level and fertile, to which are attached six shad and herring fisheries, two of which command the river channel. This land will be laid off in four tracts, so as to have one or more fisheries to each; these tracts will be again divided if requisite. This estate is level and beautifully situated, very fertile, and remarkably healthy. Plaister acts with an effect equal to that of any part of Virginia or Pennsylvania.—I have used 500 bushels in twelve months, and such is its beneficial operation, that were I to keep this land I should considerably increase the quantity. A manufacturing mill is distant about two miles, on a stream navigable for vessels carrying 1200 bushels of wheat, where the Baltimore and Dist. of Columbia prices are given for grain; being bounded on 3 sides by water, a small extent only of fence is necessary to inclose the whole: it would be admirably adapted to grazing. The improvements are a large and very substantial brick mansion, 40 by 70 feet, with every necessary outhouse, three commodious barns, houses for Negroes, and fish houses at each of the fisheries. 120,000 bricks and 4000 bushels of lime are just burnt on the premises. There is a considerable extent of live fence, both useful and ornamental, two orchards of well selected apples and peach, besides an abundance of other choice fruit. More than 150 acres are in clover, 200 in corn, and land is in preparation for sowing 250 bushels of small grain. Any quantity of hay can be cut from the low grounds, some of which (and all might,) have been reclaimed at a trifling expense. The river and creeks, abound with wild fowl, particularly canvass backs, the woods with deer and a variety of other game. Mules, cattle, highly improved sheep, farming utensels and household furniture can be had. The terms of sale will be accommodating. Property in any of the cities, negroes, bank stock, western lands, or lands near the Ridge, will be taken in payment.—Letters must be addressed to me at Pohick Church, Fairfax county, Virginia.

September 4 GEORGE MASON.

Valuable Property for Sale.

THE subscriber is desirous of selling a handsomely situated farm, on Hunting creek, in Fairfax county Virginia, adjoining the Mount Vernon estate and the lands of general Thomson Mason, four miles from Alexandria, containing about 240 acres, 80 of which are in wood—40 to 50 in thriving meadow of clover and timothy—a part of the residue recently seeded with wheat and rye, and clover, last spring—the whole enclosed with a new post and rail fence.—The improvements are, a comfortable and convenient frame dwelling house and kitchen, smoke house, poultry house, granary and stables.—There is on this place a rich and productive garden, and a large body of marsh meadow, from which may be saved annually 100 tons of hay, nearly as nutricious as the best timothy or clover.—With the farm would be sold a number of very valuable horses, cows and sheep; waggon, carts, and a variety of farming utensils and household and kitchen furniture; corn, oats and rye, and 40 tons hay. Also, adjoining the one above described, a farm containing 160 acres, recently enclosed, on which is a brick house, which a trifling expense would render comfortable. The soil is excellent, and a considerable part might be easily converted into meadow.—it would be sold with the other or separately. Also, a number of valuable servants, male and female. To prevent unnecessary application, he would observe, that they will only be sold to persons residing in the District or its vicinity, and not to be carried from it. The subscriber will also sell the greater part of his household furniture, which is new and handsome. For terms of all or any part of the above property, apply to NOBLET HERBERT, esq. or

ROMULUS RIGGS,

At his Exchange and Brokers Office, Bridge-street, Georgetown,

WISHES to purchase from one to fifty thousand dollars of North Carolina, South Carolina, and Georgia bank notes, which will be taken at a very small discount. All kinds of western and other uncurrent bank notes exchanged on the lowest terms.—Persons travelling to the westward can at all times get the notes of these banks at a reasonable discount.—Bills of exchange and bank checks, negociated on any part of the United States.—Notes of United States bank, and all of the branches, exchanged.

The White House Fishery

STILL proceeds with success in catching shad of the best quality; and those who have not yet had their full supply, may be confident of getting here what they want, for two or three weeks to come, according to what is usual at this landing.

Herrings are caught in plenty, both here and at Sandy Point, and another glut is expected up the river daily.

The roads being good, and the weather warm, it is best for persons wanting fish, to take them fresh from the seines at the landings; and to accommodate customers, country produce will be received in payment for fish, at the Alexandria prices, particularly wheat, flour, corn, meal, oats and bacon.

Exchange & Broker's Office,

Georgetown, District of Columbia.

ROMULUS RIGGS,

AT his office, next door below Crawford's tavern, Bridge-st. Georgetown, will exchange all kinds of Bank Notes on the most reasonable terms.—All persons who may have notes on the banks of North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia, would do well to call on him, as he is largely in the purchase of that kind of money, and will take it on the most reasonable terms.—Persons travelling to the Western Country may at all times get the Bank Notes of the Western Banks at a fair discount, by calling at his Office. For the information of all persons throughout the U. States, R. Riggs makes it known, that all of the Banks of the District of Columbia pay their notes on demand in specie; and it would be much to the advantage of the merchants, and trading to the South and west, to encourage the circulation of the Notes of the Banks of Georgetown, Washington and Alexandria, as it will at all times answer for remittances to the large commercial and Atlantic towns;—all persons emigrating or travelling to the westward should be very particular and take the Notes of the Banks of the District of Columbia, as they will find them the most current, there being no counterfeits on the District Banks. The Merchants' Bank of Alexandria has long since failed—all persons should be on their guard, as they will be imposed on. August 18

Blacking for Boots & Shoes,

Superior to any ever offered to the public.

ROBERT COCHRAN,

No. 48, North Fourth-street, next door to the Green Tree Inn, Philadelphia.

WITH confidence offers to the public, his superior Portable and Liquid blacking, so much admired and approved of, which is manufactured by himself only.

This blacking possesses every desirable quality, being of an oily nature, it preserves the leather perfectly soft to the last, and keeps it from cracking—it is a jet black, affords a most superlative polish, entirely free from any offensive smell, and so clean as not to soil the whi est muslin or any other substance it may chance to run against, and will keep in any climate—it has a peculiar advantage in being put up in a portable manner, and may be packed without possibility of risque, with the nicest clothes or goods. The Portable Blacking is much adapted for gentlemen residing or travelling in the country, where materials for making Blacking is not to had, and as for cheapness and elegance, far exceeds any ever imported or manufactured in the union. Where is sold as above, the beautiful Chinese Liquid Blacking, for ladies morocco boots and shoes, which makes the oldest morocco boots or shoes appear the same as when new. Sold wholesale at the manufactory, as above.

N. B. Please observe that each bottle it sealed and signed by the proprietor, to prevent spurious impressions being imposed on the public.

It may be had at the following places in Alexandria.—Dr. Stabler and Richard Woods on Fairfax street,—Dr. Semmes, & Dr. Little's apothecary shops, on King-street.—Isaac Entwisles, shoe factory, and Thomas Mount's factory & Hardware store on King-street. sw2m March 20

Charlotte Hall School.

THE board of trustees for Charlotte Hall school deem it their duty to announce to the public, the present flourishing condition of this institution. Since the introduction of the present professors, the school has rapidly progressed in the public estimation.

When Philip Briscoe, esq. was called to assume the office of Principal, there were but 27 pupils. The liberality of the State Legislature of 1817, enabled the trustees to retain his services and those of Mr. Miltimore for the classical department—the Reverend Mr. Neale H. Shaw has also been retained as professor of mathematicks, and he is aided in that department by Mr. Sweetsee, a gentleman in high estimation as a professor. Under the management of these gentlemen the school has now 95 boys; and very many applications have already been made for entrance and board. Heretofore a portion of the boys have been compelled to board at the neighboring houses at too great a distance from the school; the trustees are now making arrangements which will enable fifty boys more to be accommodated immediately at the school; so that at all times the Principal will be enabled to exercise a general superintendance over their moral deportment (to the corruption of which, the boys in this retired village have but few temptations). The board will remark to those who are unacquainted with this place, that no part of Maryland is more distinguished for its general healthiness. The price of board is only 100 dollars a year. The tuition is now but 28 dollars a year! It will be raised after August to 32 dollars—a price much lower, however, than any of the public schools of our state.

It is intended then by the trustees to select four boys (of poor and indigent parents) of promise, and to board, clothe, and educate them entirely at the expense of the institution, and afterwards to labor to procure them that station to which their talents and conduct may entitle them.

Signed, by order,

NEALE H. SHAW, Reg'r.
